

In this session I will outline and discuss the significance of the concepts of 'critical mass' and 'social networks' for an understanding of collective action. The presentation will draw upon two on-going empirical projects, one on student activism, the other on punk and post-punk music scenes.